

RADAR Press: “This thing sounds great!”

RADAR impresses Mix and Tape Op reviewers with the V S-Nyquists’ stellar sound, solid performance, and simple user interface.

In Mix (Nov. issue), Tony Nunes wrote up his review on the RADAR V S-Nyquist demo system that we shipped him in the spring. Complete with listening tests that compare RADAR models as well as sample rates, Tony found that the S-Nyquist system delivers “sonic splendor all the way.” Look for it online here.

Tony SanFilippo reviewed the V S-Nyquist for Tape Op (Nov/Dec issue) from a tape guy’s perspective. He liked the Dual Disk recording feature for its instant backup capability – something that you can’t do with tape. And even a tape guy like Tony was amazed at how close the S-Nyquist converters sounded to the source. Look for Tape Op at your local music retail store, or go to <http://www.tapeop.com> to get a free subscription (U.S. only).

Tech Tip: Jump-To Menu Navigation

Who ever said you need a mouse for easy menu navigation! RADAR makes it fast and intuitive to jump to different menus – here’s how:

If you know the name of the menu item you’re looking for, just press the first letter of the menu item on your KC24 or Session Controller. Your controller will display all menu options that start with that letter in one-by-one order.

E.g. If you’re in the Main Menu and are trying to get to the Project Menu, press the “P” key to jump to the Project Menu. Press the “P” key again for the Preferences Menu.
