Cherokee Studios Upgrades iZ RADAR 24's to Version 3.20

Los Angeles, CA (November 10, 2002)—The staff of West Hollywood's Cherokee Studios recently received some personalized product training and the latest RADAR 24 software upgrade from iZ Technology's President Barry Henderson, VP Marketing Robin Leboe and iZ Man David Sawchuk.

The new software provides several new features including .wav and broadcast wave file import. "We couldn't wait to demonstrate the new software to the staff at Cherokee," relates Barry Henderson "we are constantly listening to our customers and incorporating their feature requests into the product and it's a great feeling to see them being used here at a legendary studio like Cherokee."

With over 200 gold and platinum albums to their credit Cherokee owners Bruce, Dee and Joe Robb have been a constant presence in the L.A. Recording scene for the last 30 plus years. "We offer the highest level of sound quality and the best possible recording experience for our clients," says Bruce Robb. "We rely on the best equipment available, the Trident A-Ranges, the API Legacy Plus and the RADAR 24's. They all sound incredible and they're totally reliable. The new 3.20 software for the RADAR's gives us the file import and export capability we've been asking for. Now we can easily move audio between different formats if we need to. It's fantastic."
